Context

The Inter-American Committee on Ports (CIP) of the Organization of American States (OAS), through its Technical Advisory Group (TAG) on Port-City Relation, Social Responsibility, and Gender Equality, is co-organizing together with the Latin American and Caribbean Economic System (SELA) and the Network of Women in Maritime Authorities of Latin America (Red MAMLa) the 4th Hemispheric Seminar on Port-City Relation, Social Responsibility, and Gender Equality.

This event aims to promote dialogue and cooperation among port authorities, international organizations, the private sector, and civil society to advance toward more humane, inclusive, and sustainable ports. Over two days, key topics will be addressed, including port-city integration, social responsibility, innovation, gender equity, environmental management, and human capital development.

The seminar will foster the exchange of experiences and best practices, while strengthening strategic partnerships and institutional capacities in line with the CIP-OAS mandates on sustainability, inclusion, and port resilience.
