The Port of Lázaro Cárdenas has operated more than 40 years.

It is located in the Mexican Pacific coast in the state of Michoacan and it now lists number 2 in container capacity in Mexico with an annual traffic of almost one million TEUs with a capacity for 2,200,000 TEUs. Initially, it emerged as an industrial port, but as the container market began to gain importance, the Port of Lázaro Cárdenas found a new role, the movement of commercial cargo. Its modern facilities are equipped and qualified to meet with efficiency, safety and productivity the demands of an industrial and commercial port. They have become an alternative for cargo ship and a key logistics base to target this growing market. For more information, please click here.
