University of Miami - Center for International Business Education and Research (CIBER)
GSEM Conference - Storer Auditorium
1306 Stanford Drive
Coral Gables, FL 33146

February 22-24, 2017

AGENDA

As world trade expands, the Maritime Transportation System faces serious security threats that make including security concerns into operational plans critical to the maritime and port sectors. Excessive or complex regulations and processes are not only burdensome and imply higher costs to the shipping industry but can be detrimental for economic growth. Therefore, increased coordination and activities focusing on competitiveness that foster efficient security measures are vital to the sustainable development of the maritime industry.
